The Weary Places

Sen. Vandenberg's plea for an honest trial of co-operative security through support of the United Nations charter adds to the stature he is developing in the field of foreign policy. His speech in the Senate on Friday, like the now famous speech last winter describing his ideals for an American policy, does credit to the humanitarianism that is this government's unique and priceless asset in international relations.

Sen. Vandenberg does not speak only of security for the great nations. They alone have a chance to win it by their own power, insofar as that is possible when cities can be wiped out at will by long-range bombers. He speaks also of security for the "weary places of the earth"—the places that are trampled and destroyed when strong notions fight.

One thinks of the Philippines, Belgium, Ethiopia—and of the impoverished Balkan states, France threatened with decadence, Spain torn assunder by war plotted abroad, Italy stripped of the last tatters of prestige. These are weary places that cannot stand one more war. Great Britain has been battered badly by two wars it neither could afford to win nor lose. Russia, struggling to overcome poverty, has been made poorer. China has been bled helpless. Even the United States is beginning to comprehend that it cannot dissipate its wealth in war and still have wealth for peace.

The United Nations charter casts only a slight shadow of hope in the weary places, but it is all there is. There is no comfort to be found in the cynicism of those who say there is nothing to look forward to but more war, more destruction and more weariness, as if war had been ordained by destiny, instead of created by men's folly.

Departure of a Lady

It was too bad Frances Perkins always seemed out of place of secretary of the Department of Labor in the Roosevelt administration—in the way any dignified lady would seem to be out of place in surroundings that detracted from her dignity.

Miss Perkins as the first woman members of a presidential cabinet was a political symbol. When she was appointed in 1933, it remained to be seen whether or not the symbolism would jell into effectual administrative action. Miss Perkins was on the spot. She never got off it.

She did not fail, but neither did she succeed. Whether the odds against her as a woman were too great under any circumstances, or whether she was the victim of conditions that would have been too much for any secretary of labor is a moot point. Pending decision, the responsibilities of the office are to be turned over to Lewis B. Schwellenbach, former U. S. senator from Washington. Mr. Schwellenbach's record will shed light on Miss Perkins' record as he turns his hand to the Labor Department's administration. But it will be well to remember that he has accepted the post with the apparent understanding that he is to function in it as an individual administrator.

Miss Perkins more often played the role of a nominal administrator, with Mr. Roosevelt making the bulk of the decisions and taking the bulk of the credit, when credit was forthcoming. Perhaps it was not Miss Perkins, now retiring as the first woman member of the cabinet, who fell short of success, but the arrangement under which the first woman to hold a cabinet position was obliged to serve.

Shangri-La Up-to-Date

The WAC corporal and the Army sergeant and lieutenant rescued from New Guinea's so-called Shangri-La after 46 days will find it hard to see the glamor of their adventure for newspaper readers back home.

They were the survivors of a plane crash in which 20 persons killed. They wouldn't have been flying over New Guinea in a plane at all, had it not been for a grim and bloody war with a savage enemy.

Their adventures in the beautiful valleys consisted of weeks of anxious concern about their rescue. Troops were parachuted down to clear an air strip. Finally a glider was landed. After costly experimentation, it was hooked successfully and the adventurers were flown to Hollandia. Ended was the theoretically idyllic existence in the midst of unearthly beauty. Ended was the reek of savages who covered themselves with pig grease. The long days and the tropical nights under the Southern Cross, the beating drums, the myriad sounds of the jungle, the curious customs of a lost civilization—they were no more. The threesome were on their way to a modern parade of soap, sheets, cold beverages, sanitation and movies.

Dreams of life in tropical paradises are the exclusive property of all of us who never have been there. Shangri-La up-to-date is just another place to be rescued from.

Warm Hopes and Cold Water

The little battle between the automobile industry and government spokesmen keeps threatening to grow up into a big one. The industry's warm hopes of large-scale production and the government spokesmen's use of cold weather to quench those hopes are heading for an explosion.

Last week, Henry Ford II told a delegation of governors that the Ford Co. would have to lay off 50,000 to 60,000 employees unless its production quota for 1945 was sharply increased. In Washington about the same time Defense Transportation Director Johnson told the public at large that it will be at least three years before most of the people who want new cars can get them.

Mr. Ford, of course, was talking figures. Mr. Johnson was talking speculation, apparently for the purpose of puncturing inflated hopes of buying new cars in a matter of months, instead of years. Each in his way was being honest, but it is increasingly plain that opposing views in this matter, however honest, are heading for a showdown.

Legislative Homing Instinct

The 96th General Assembly, having milled all the contents of the legislative hopper that seemed to it to need attention, is obeying the homing instinct and will not convene again as a body unless called for a special session by Governor Lauche.

There is no general satisfaction with the 96th Assembly's performance. But it has become a curious circumstance in Ohio—and most other states, apparently—that the state legislature never seems to satisfy the onlookers. Lawmaking in the states is subject to all the ills of congressional procedure, without benefit of the tendency to forgive the national legislature its shortcomings because it is, after all, indispensable to popular government. The work of the state legislature is indispensable, too, even though on a smaller scale. If the 96th General Assembly of Ohio was less than satisfactory in its performance, the fact remains it was extremely satisfactory in the fact of its existence.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, July 3

A spirit of romance and adventure dominates on this day, with slight inclination to commonplace or sordid business affairs. The coming holiday lures to unusual preoccupations and stirring about, with the motions and impulses actuating the plans and programs. Affectional, social and domestic concerns should bring much satisfaction, although it would be wise to be prudent and considerate rather than carried to excess.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy an exciting and adventurous year, with change, travel, uprooting from old fastnesses and ties for fresh pastures and interests. The accent may be on the romantic, domestic and social relations rather than the customary or workaday. There may be surprising occurrences or developments in directions little expected. It would be well to make decisions with deliberation and not emotionally or impulsively.

A child born on this day may have unusual talents, with tendencies toward the adventurous and romantic, inciting it to sudden changes and new scenes.

There's one thing that all the home-coming boys have a right to expect to find—that we're doing our share of War Bond buying!

An Illinois doctor says high heels are making hoofs of women's feet. "Is well there are no ration points on horseshoes."

Now that troopships are bringing our boys home, we can pick up where the British left off during World War I, singing "The Yanks Are Coming"—and even more cheerfully.

Administering Penicillin

BY HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WHENEVER a new method of treatment is discovered and found to be worthwhile, efforts follow to make the treatment simpler and more effective.

This has happened in the case of the wonder-working drug, penicillin. When penicillin was first employed, in practically all instances it was used by injection into the muscle, but such injections also had to be given at frequent intervals.

Shrinking Blood Vessels

Recently, Doctor William M. Parkinson and his co-workers of the University of Pennsylvania have been using penicillin mixed with gelatin and a drug like ephedrine, which has the effect of shrinking the blood vessels. When this mixture is used, the penicillin is more slowly absorbed or taken up by the body, remains in the blood for a longer period of time, and the number of injections may be cut from eight a day to three a day. Of course, the continuous intravenous drip method is still widely used.

Patients may take penicillin by swallowing it in the form of a pill or gelatin capsule instead of by injections. Recently a mixture of penicillin with cotton seed oil put into gelatin capsules, has been developed. The gelatin capsule protects the penicillin from the acid of the stomach. The stomach acid rapidly destroys penicillin. When the capsule of the penicillin gets into the intestine, it breaks open and the drug is absorbed into the blood from the small intestine. There are also waters containing penicillin for treating sore throat and tonsillitis.

Capsule Method

Tests not only with animals, but also with human patients, showed the method of giving the penicillin in capsules is effective in keeping a sufficient amount of the drug in the blood for action against infections which may be present in the body.

It is true that more penicillin must be employed when it is given in this way, but since it is more easily administered and a less highly refined product is needed, this new method may entirely supplant the injection form of treatment in the future. Of course, with the capsules, it is necessary to determine its exact effectiveness, but it would appear that it will not be long before penicillin may be used to a greater extent by administration through the mouth.

Car Wheels and Chassis Straightened by Klein

Just why the front wheels of your car toe-in may not interest you very much but it has taken many hours time of the most experienced automobile engineers to figure out the exact pitch the front wheels should have to make your car function smoothly and with the least wear on tires.

The pitch must be just right in both front wheels or many difficulties develop, the most serious now perhaps is the rapid wearing of tires and it's easy and inexpensive to keep your car in perfect front end alignment.

Usually the job requires only an adjustment, but if you have bent the spindle, axle or some rod Matt Klein's specialized garage is equipped with the factory-approved Bear Alignment machines that by applying pressure can soon straighten and put your car in the same condition as when it left the factory.

With Bear Alignment equipment recording dials show the operator just when the pitch is correct according to the engineers' specifications shown on charts they have that apply to all makes of cars.

He has been located in his present store for many years, serving the public in several lines and for the past few years giving special attention to Johns-Manville "Blown" Rock Wool Insulation, a product no one would think of considering except as the very best that money could buy.

Salona Store Equipped To Help All Gardeners

The inexperienced are sure to feel it takes faith, brawn and patience to nurse a row of beans, a hill of cucumbers, or any of the many vegetables so hopefully deared to maturity. Almost from the time the first leaves pop timidly through the ground it is a battle. Neglect them for a couple of days and the soft green leaves will take on some sickly appearance or disappear entirely.

If you visit the Salona Supply Co. and let them sell you the right insecticides to feed every variety of bug you can ignore the wilted, imported store variety of vegetable that's so tasteless and flavorless and sit down to a meal that will repay you many times over for the time and worry of producing what seemed so easy the day you dug the first trench for the seed.

WE FLEW Without GUNS

By Gen. Genovese

WHENEVER we flew gasoline we referred to it as "the day-time" although with other types of fuel it was sometimes safer, because of either the weather or Jap activity. To make the trip at night, with gasoline, however, there were hazards without adding to the certainty of having to take an instrument approach to the field.

The fields at both Dinjan and Luning had no floodlights to assist in a night landing or take-off. The blackouts at both fields were complete except for dim rays of green and red lights that could be flashed on for an instant along the landing strips just before a plane's wheels touched the ground.

The reason for such precaution, of course, was to protect the fields from strafing attacks by Jap planes and there were many such. Few of them, however, were very successful. There were two technical reasons most commonly used by the Japs, both of which depended on their effectiveness on the well-known fact that C. N. A. C. planes had frequent radio trouble and were at such times unable to contact the field prior to coming in for a landing. Also, because of the generally bad flying into Kunming or Luning often came on both motors in faulty working condition. If both motors were in good shape the pilot could keep them perfectly synchronized, then the sound detectors at the base, which get an effective warning on a multi-motored ship only if the engines are in synchronization, could exactly determine the plane's position.

A Japanese bomber, therefore, could come in high, above the clouds, with his motors out of synchronization. The ground crew at the base wouldn't know where the plane was because the detector couldn't get a bearing, and there would be no way of knowing until the plane came out of the clouds whether it was a friendly plane having both radio and motor trouble, or whether it was a Jap. If it were the latter, and his instrument approach was on the nose, the bombs would be dropping almost as soon as the plane appeared from out of the clouds. Fortunately, most of their instrument work was pretty sloppy and they would be under an anti-aircraft barrage with Army fighters swarming up to meet them before they were anywhere near.

At night the Japs had a special advantage. Keeping the motors in synchronization sometimes, and sometimes not, the bomber would come in toward the field with its landing lights on, just as if it were a C. N. A. C. plane whose radio wasn't working. The A. A. guns wouldn't fire until the ship was identified, and by then, occasionally, it would be too late and the bombs would be falling. The searchlights on the ground were our best protection in cases like that, because as soon as they found the plane the gunners could see if the landing gear was up or down. If it was up, they fired.

After delivering a load of gas to Kunming one day, I started on the return trip to Dinjan about 6 o'clock in the evening, figuring to get in a little before midnight and get a good night's sleep before heading back the next morning with another load. The return trip was rough. We found soft ice on the south route, and heading up north hoping to get away from it, ran into clear ice—the kind that sticks in big chunks on the wings and props instead of conforming to the plane's surface. It was difficult to keep our altitude. The ice gathered on the propeller blades and distorted the rhythm of the motors. If the radio had been working I would have checked with the field but conditions farther south, but it had gone dead half an hour after the takeoff.

The strain on the engines was terrific. It was impossible to keep them co-ordinated. A good hour before we got back to Dinjan the one on the left was beginning to foul. It would run good for a few minutes, then start to cough and sputter. By working on the carburetor control for a few minutes I would get it back into adjustment. When it would go bad again.

My approach to the field at Dinjan was good on the first try, but just as I was letting down the landing gear that left engine started to kick up again. I grabbed the carburetor control and started working on it, and then I heard Eddie Quinn, my co-pilot, let out a yell.

A second later there was a terrific explosion. I realized we were being fired on by our own anti-aircraft batteries. I slammed the throttle forward and got the hell up out of there as fast as I could.

For half an hour we flew around in wide circles—well out of the guns' range—working on the motor, and when it finally seemed to be in fairly good shape we tried the landing again, frantically flashing our landing lights, dropping our gear, slowing our engine speed—doing everything but dropping notes out of the plane that we were good guys, friends, and wanted nothing but a quiet landing and a good night's sleep. We were so earnest about it that the over-zealous A. A. boys finally were convinced and we came in without further trouble.

County to Derive More From Sales Tax Receipts

LISBON, July 2.—County Auditor I.J. Vorndran has returned from Columbus where he had attended a meeting of the Tax Commission of Ohio held in interest of a bill before the legislature to appropriate money for the municipalities from the collection of the sales tax.

The bill had asked for $18,000,000 to be distributed to the State but it was cut to $16,000,000 and passed at that figure, which is a $4,000,000 increase over the 1944 figure of $12,000,000.

Columbiana county's share, which includes the sub-divisions and municipalities, will be $153,000 for the year 1945 which is an increase of $57,000 over the year 1944. The amount given this county that year was $96,000.

Now that Civilian Goods are being made, can I get a Telephone?

You've read a lot about reconversion since V-E Day and perhaps you've wondered how victory over Germany affects your chances of getting telephone service?

Briefly this is the present picture:

1. Limited quantities of telephone equipment are being produced by our peacetime supplier, the Western Electric Company, but only in a volume sufficient to provide service to a small number of the 90,000 families on our waiting list. In fact, the list is growing longer because of the heavy demand for new service. The bulk of Western's facilities still must be devoted to manufacture of vital communications equipment for war in the Pacific. As soon as war needs decrease, releasing manufacturing facilities, production of telephone equipment for civilian use will be stepped up as rapidly as possible.
2. Fair and necessary government regulations of wartime telephone installations still are in effect to guarantee essential service for war production and for urgent reasons of personal and public health and safety.

3. Improvements in existing service, such as regrading to better types of service and installation of extension telephones, must wait until more equipment is produced. All available facilities are being used to serve families now without any service.

4. Plans are ready for expansion and improvement of our entire plant to furnish fast, dependable service to everyone who wants it. This program will be pushed forward as rapidly as reduction of war needs permits.

June, Month Of Weddings, Adds Few More On Saturday

Taking advantage of the last day of the month to be a June bride, several Salem girls chose Saturday for their wedding day.

Engeter-Homan

Palms, ferns and flowers banked the altar in a lovely candle-light ceremony in which Miss Elaine Engeter of Salem and Gunner's Mate First Class John V. Homan of Gnadenhutten, exchanged their marriage vows at 7:30 p. m. Saturday at the Emmanuel Lutheran church with the pastor, Rev. John Bauman, officiating, in the single ring service.

Tall white seven-branch candelabra, tied with large white bows, were on either side of the altar. Before the ceremony Miss Marjorie Otto of Leetonia sang "O Promise Me," "Because," and "I Love You Truly" accompanied by Mrs. W. J. Seeman, who also played the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, which heralded the approach of the bride party. For the recessional she played Mendelssohn's wedding march.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Matthew Engeter, was attractive in a gown of white marquisette and styled with a short train. It had a satin bodice and chantilly lace was ruffled around the marquisette yoke. The sleeves were long and pointed at the wrist. Her illusion veil fell from a lace cap studded with pearls. She wore a string of pearls, a gift of the groom.

Miss Marian Davidson, maid of honor, was costumed in pale blue net with a lace bodice, three-quarter length sleeves, and a sweetheart neckline edged in net. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Mona Cahill, bridesmaid, was attired in a melon chiffon gown with short sleeves and sweetheart neckline and carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

The bride's attendants and the soloist wore gold crosses, gifts of the bride.

In Military Uniforms

Soundman Second Class Leonard Parker of Akron was the best man. He and the groom were in military uniform. They have been in both war theaters for the past two years. Lieut. Edward Campbell of Gnadenhutten and Jack Ritter of Columbiana were ushers. They received wallets.

Mrs. Engeter, mother of the bride, wore a green and white print jersey with white accessories and Mrs. Homan, mother of the groom, wore a navy blue dress with white accessories. Both wore corsages of white roses.

A reception was held at the bride's home on Newgarden st. The refreshment table was adorned with white tapers in crystal candelabra, a bouquet of white lilies and a three-tiered wedding cake topped with a white horseshoe on which were the words, "Good Luck" inscribed in gold letters.

The bride, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Engeter of Newgarden st., is a graduate of Salem High school, class of '43. She is employed in the office at the High school.

Gunner's Mate Homan, a graduate of Gnadenhutten High school, class of '40, was employed by the Deming Co. before enlisting in the service in October, 1942. He served in the European and Asiatic Pacific war theaters and had 26 months sea duty aboard a mine sweeper. At the expiration of his 30 day leave he will report to the navy recruiting station at Columbus.

The couple are spending a few days in Cleveland. For traveling the bride wore a navy blue suit with white accessories and a corsage of white roses.

Out-of town guests were from Gnadenhutten, Akron, Leetonia and Columbiana.

O'Hara-Faini

Wearing an attractive white eyelet embroidery attract length dress and a corsage of gardenias and yellow roses, Miss Joan O'Hara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. O'Hara of E. Third st., became the wife of Ensign Vito A. Faini, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Faini of E. Fifth st., at 2 p. m. Saturday at the home of the officiating clergyman, Rev. Fr. Richard Gaffney, pastor of St. Paul's Catholic church, on Ohio ave.

Mrs. Richard Koppenhauer, matron of honor, wore a navy blue dress, and a corsage of pink carnations. Edward Volpe was the best man. A wedding dinner was served at the home of the groom's parents.

Mrs. Faini is a graduate of Salem High school. Ensign Faini, who was graduated from Salem High school, returned last week from overseas.

The couple spent Saturday night and Sunday in Cleveland and left last evening for Norfolk, Va., where he will be reassigned.

She Married a Kind and —

STATUS of this beautiful woman, the commoner wife of King Leopold III of the Belgians, in the current Belgian political crisis over Leopold's planned return to the throne, is a much-discussed affair in Brussels. Leopold, it is said, asserts his wife signed away all rights as queen before their marriage and agreed that any children would not be in line of succession to the throne. But opponents declared that if Leopold succeeds in regaining power in the present emergency, his commoner consort will rule as queen of all the Belgians whether he wills it or not. The 29-year-old beauty, the former Lillian Baels, was the governess of Leopold's three children by his marriage to the late Queen Astrid. Her marriage to the king while they were still captives of the Germans has been extremely successful, according to friends.

The War Today

at Balikpapan, just as it was "Diggers" who made the landings at Tarakan, on the northeast coast of Borneo, May 1, and at Brunei bay, on the northwest coast, June 10. Balikpapan was heavily defended, but the most intensive pre-invasion bombardment ever made in the Southwest Pacific softened up the Jap resistance so that Allied casualties thus far reported have been light. The Aussies were put ashore by an Allied fleet of more than 300 ships—American, Royal Australian and Royal Netherlands.

Borneo is the world's third largest island—next to Greenland and New Guinea—and is about one-tenth the size of Australia. Strategically it lies as the central point of a square whose sides are Indo-China, Sumatra and Java, the Celebes and the Philippines. This explains the significance of MacArthur's statement that "our shipping can now sail with land-based air cover to any point in the Southwest Pacific." This huge, equatorial island has vast mineral resources but it is largely undeveloped. That is due in considerable degree to the fact that the country is mountainous and covered with jungle, and it is impossibly hot and humid.

Balikpapan is the most important port on the east coast and is the center of the Borneo oil industry.

Borneo is packed with strange animals—the mouse deer, elephants, flying foxes and flying frogs. Less strange but more fearsome are the 20-foot pythons, orangutans, crocodiles and what not.

Brunei town where the Aussies are fighting is one of the world's odd settlements. Its population of 12,000 live in huts built on poles over mud flats which run out from the Brunei river. They say there are women living there who never have set foot on dry land.

Chicks Put On Meat Fast

CHICAGO—The lowly chicken is a champion for producing meat in a hurry, Prairie Farmer reported in its current issue. It said that E. A. Sparks, Greene county, Ind., had 1,205 White Rocks weighing an average of three pounds each 11 weeks after buying them as baby chicks. Only 95 of 1,300 chicks failed to survive.

FLEET GETS NEW SCOUT SEAPLANE OFF BORNEO

TWICE AS FAST as the venerable Kingfisher, veteran Navy cruiser and battleship-based scout seaplane, with three times the horsepower in her mighty radial engine, the new Navy SC-1 Seahawk, built by Curtiss Wright, has become a part of the fighting fleet. This fast single space scout-observation float plane is catapulted off cruisers and battleships to spot for the ship's gunfire, to search out enemy fleet units and to act as rescue plane when necessary. It first joined the U. S. fleet in the pre-invasion bombardment of Borneo. This is a United States Navy photo.

LEAVES FROM A WAR CORRESPONDENT'S NOTEBOOK

by Hal Boyle

BY HENRY B. JAMESON
(Substituting For Hal Boyle)

LONDON—No story of how the long, drawn out war in Burma was won would be complete without mention of "Elephant Bill" Williams' unique army unit.

It is a labor company made up solely of elephants—more than 200 of them—and their handlers.

Their main job was building log bridges and carving roads through dense jungles where no roads existed before. But the elephants carried out many other important assignments like evacuation of the sick. Each animal could carry three men 12 miles a day over roads impassable even to mules.

Boss man is Lt. Col. J. H. Williams, one of the world's foremost experts on organization of elephants. He is a tall Cornishman who fought with the Devon regiment in Egypt, Mesopotamia and India in the last war and then spent 26 years in Burma as an employee of the Bombay-India Burma Trading Corp.

The use of elephants in the Burma campaign dates back to 1941 when civilians were evacuated during the retreat from the Chindwin river to the Imphal plain.

Japs Got Them First
About 5,000 elephants, formerly belonging to the Big Teak extraction firms and local contractors, were left behind in Burma. The Japanese, who had used this type of transport in bringing mortars through Siam, continued to use them in Burma.

In November, 1942, a group of British officers and natives, headed by Col. Williams, managed to "persuade" 60 elephants to bolt from the Japanese lines.

This herd, was the embryo of the present organization. By the time the 23rd Indian division reappeared in the Kabaw valley the elephants had bridged all the streams, enabling the division to bring its vehicles in.

In the 1943 Monsoon the elephants squelched back through the mud to drag bogged trucks and guns to high ground. By the time the army was ready to return after the Monsoon, all the bridges had been relaid by the elephant gang.

The colonel's elephants have been asked to crank broken down trucks, to spray tar on jungle roads with their trunks and to have guns fired from their backs.

Because of the presence of magnesium in grapefruit it induces sleep.

ARE YOU CHEATING YOURSELF?

Are you one of the thousands of folks who for some mysterious and unknown reason are accumulating large amounts of cash in your savings accounts, safety deposit boxes, mattresses, etc.?

Are you one of those who question the honor and dependability of Uncle Sam's promise written right on each bond?

If you believe in the cause for which our boys are fighting and dying you surely cannot challenge the integrity and dependability of your government's bond agreement, the very thing they are fighting to preserve. SO WHY HOLD CASH when this government of ours agrees to deliver cash on your bond any time when requested by you after sixty days from date of purchase, and even more dollars in return with each year you hold on? With a trip to your bank or financial institution cash is as readily obtainable on your war bond as it is on your payroll check.

Again the Question . . .
Are YOU Cheating Yourself?
